THE PONTE VECCHIO ACROSS THE ARNO

The Ponte Vecchio is about a thousand years old. It has sl on its lower level. A corridor connects the Uffizi Palace on side of the Arno with the Pitti Palace on the other.

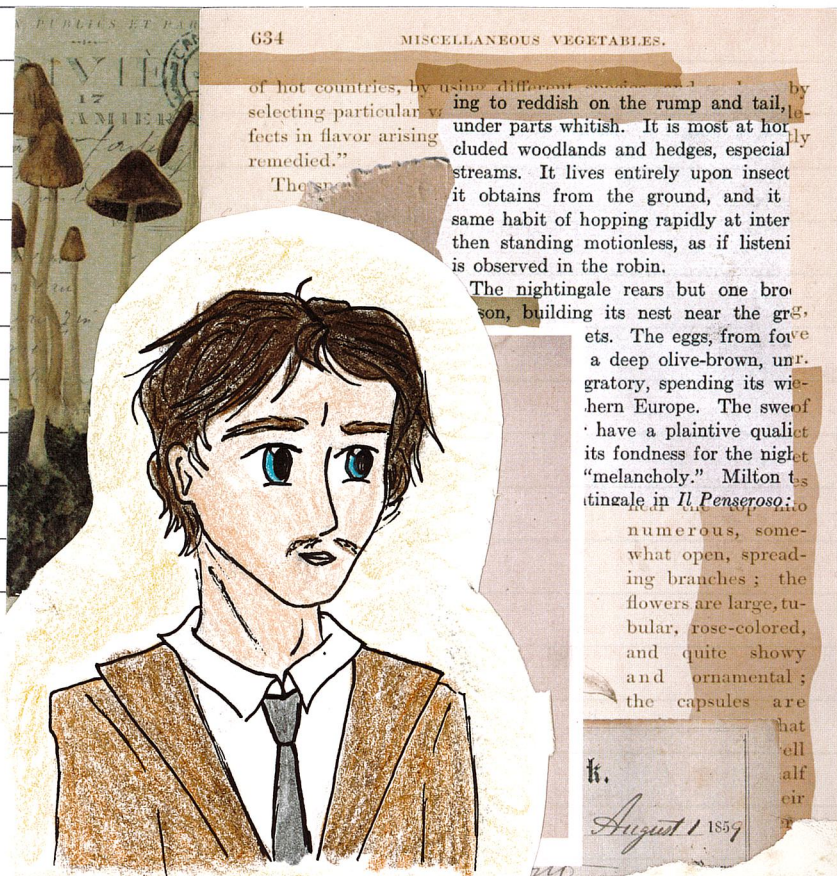

Florence, even more than Rome, was the cradle the Italian Renaissance. This rebirth of classical knowledge soon gave way to new creativity in art literature, and Florentines led the procession. Dant magnificent poetry made the Tuscan dialect the official language of Italy. Francesco Petrarca composed his lovely sonnets that still live today, and Giovanni Boccaccio wrote his 'Decameron' tales. Niccolò Machiavelli, another Florentine, set down his brilliant, cynical observations on politics. (See Italian Literature.)

Giotto was the first of many immortal Florentine painters and sculptors. Michelangelo worked by on the city's fortifications and by night on his rings and statues. Ghiberti labored almost on the doors for the Florentine Bapt other great artists studied or worked among them Leonardo da Vinci, and Luca della Robbia. (See Renaissance.)

August 1935

I'd been back three months in the old country and frankly wondering why. The weather made me liverish, no exercise to speak of and the talk of the ordinary Englishman made me sick.

Leaving me. Richard Hannay. Thirty-seven years old, sound in wind and limb. Back home. Which was no home at all, just a dull little rented West One Flat. Portland Place actually. And I was bored. No, more than bored. Tired. Tired of the world and tired of life, to be honest.

So I called by my broker. He wasn't in. Dropped into my club. Full of old colonial buffers. Had a scotch, picked up the evening paper, then put it back. Full of elections and wars and rumours of wars. And I thought - who the bloody hell cares? What does it matter? What happens to anyone? What happens to me? No-one'd miss me. I wouldn't miss me. I could quite easily just,...

There's no time to think.
Your minds singing, your hearts racing, and you're meeting people. Real people!
Who are doing the best they can! Yes!
Doing the best they can in all terrible situations the world throws at them.
Suffering things no man or woman ought to suffer!
And yet they carry on, they don't give up!
They do their best for everyone, no matter what they damn well look after each.
Is that such an outmoded sentimental notion?

Period

erature was that written prior to the 1st century, which was called by Constantine the Great as the first of the Christian era. The first of these works are the Apostolic Fathers (see below). The first of these works are the Apostolic Fathers of the 1st and 2nd centuries, among the Apostolic Fathers are St. Ignatius of Antioch, St. Papias of Asia Minor, and others. Their works, which are of great moral and doctrinal value, are a group of writers, who were against its perverted beliefs. Among the most important are St. Irenaeus, St. Felix, and others. When Constantine...

oils are also used as food indirectly. For example, some foods absorb a great deal of fat or oil. Some fats and oils are used as shortening, particularly bread, cake, and pastry. They are also used in salad dressings. Oils are used in many ways other than as fuel oils for heat. Because oil is so important in lubricate machinery. Its proper use is important in paints and other materials. Lubricants; Paints.) Fats and oils are used in making soap. Animal or vegetable fats and oils are used in the production of many other products.

WHAT IS THE 39 STEPS?

The first feature of the new engine is it's greatly increased ratio of compression, represented by  $r$  minus 1 over  $r$  to the power of gamma and 9 sequenced to the power of  $\alpha y$  squared duplicated by 32 point, 71 point and 88 point recurring reduced by 19 alpha providing to equal cubes of epsilon in serial circumference aligned to three double governor valves flowing radially to the point of  $3/65\pi$ -arranged in series with concentric rows on the diaphragms. The longitudinal pressure being exerted on the turbine shafts is counterbalanced by a grooving piston at the HP end of the shaft, excess pressure being taken by the adjustable thrust block which locates the rotor to the power of  $900ab/7$  and seen in end elevation the access of the true line of cylinders is an angle of 65 degrees. This device renders the engine - completely silent!

come from the bird's blood. The red and yellow colors come from its fat. The rainbow colors shimmering on the throat of the hummingbird, the blue of the bluebird, the iridescent green of the parrot come not from pigments but from refracted light. Microscopic ridges on the feathers break up the light that falls on them, producing many exquisite colors. So beautiful are feathers in pattern as well as in color that people since ancient times have taken them from birds to adorn themselves. The emperors and priests of the Aztec and Maya Indians in Mexico and Central America reserved the feathers of the quetzal for their robes and headdresses. It was a crime for anyone else to kill these birds.
